Getting the most out of your visit to Louth.....some suggested visitor attractions

Louth is a beautiful market town, situated on the edge of the Lincolnshire Wolds, a designated Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty. Whilst you are visiting the area, here are a couple of attractions which we hope will add to your visit, or even encourage you to visit again!

St James' Church

Built in the 15th century, our very own St James' Church has the distinction of having the tallest spire of any Parish church in England (295 feet) and attracts many thousands of visitors to the town. It is open to visitors Easter to Christmas on Mondays through Saturdays from 10.30am to 4.00pm and from Christmas to Easter on Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays from 8.00am to 12.00 noon. Some of the best views can be obtained by climbing the tower—not for the faint hearted!

William Brown's Panorama of Louth

This is a major work of 19th century provincial art and is a bird's eye view of Louth and the surrounding area, framed in the time warp of a busy sunny day. Painted by William Brown in 1844 from the top of St. James' Church spire during its restoration, it is a remarkable 360 degrees panorama on two oil on linen canvasses each 9 feet by 6 feet. This is on display in the Council Chamber of the Town Hall and a copy can be seen at Louth Museum. Prints of these paintings can be viewed in the Drawing Room at The Priory.

Louth Museum

Louth Museum was built in 1910 by the Louth Naturalists' Antiquarian and Literary Society (Ants and Nats) and is still run by them today. It has only recently reopened following a £660,000 refurbishment and extension of the original museum. Opening times Tuesday to Saturday 10.00am - 4.00pm April through October.

Louth Market

Market days are Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays with a Farmers Market on the 4th Wednesday of every month. These are very popular with visitors—feel free to leave your car in the car park as parking in town can be oversubscribed!

Greenwich Meridian

Louth is one of the few towns through which the Meridian passes, dividing the town into West and East. A brass line and plaque denoting the Meridian can be found in many places throughout the town, namely Newmarket, Kidgate, Queen's Street, Eastgate, Northgate, James Street, etc.

Hubbards Hills

This is a delightful area for walking with lovely green open spaces, steeply wooded slopes and safe bathing in the stream. The area was donated to the people of Louth by Auguste Pahud, a local schoolteacher, in memory of his beloved wife Annie. A commemorative tablet is housed in a temple across the stream.

The Louth Art Trail

Some splendid examples of wood carving, stone masonry, ironwork and stained glass are scattered around Louth—The Navigation Canal, Westgate Fields and at various points of the Greenwich Meridian.

Louth Food Trail

Louth remains the kind of town that has sadly disappeared from large parts of Britain—one which has preserved the streetscape of bygone times. We are proud of our many independent butchers, poulterers, bakers, cheese shops, delicatessens, and many others. We endorse our local suppliers and would be glad to refrigerate any purchases you wish to make to take home with you.

Tastes of Lincolnshire

It is a little known fact that 20% of all Britain's food production originates from Lincolnshire! We are proud to be associated with Tastes of Lincolnshire, who are involved in the promotion of traditional Lincolnshire produce and producers. Look out for the Tastes of Lincolnshire emblem for quality assurance.
